Government Auditing Standards Exposure Draft," 2006, p. 25.	"In all matters relating to the audit work, the audit organization and the individual auditor, whether government or public, should be free both in fact and appearance from personal, external, and organizational impairments to independence". GAO Government Auditing Standards Amendment No. 3, "Independence," January 2002, §3.11, pg 1.	"The audit organization should report regularly to the entity's independent audit committee and/or the appropriate government oversight body." "Government Auditing Standards Exposure Draft," 2006, p. 36.	"Auditors and audit organizations have a responsibility to maintain independence, so that opinions, conclusions, judgments, and recommendations will be impartial and will be viewed as impartial by knowledgeable third parties. An auditor should avoid situations that could lead reasonable third parties with knowledge of the relevant facts and circumstances to conclude that the auditor is not able to maintain independence and, thus, is not capable of exercising objective and impartial judgment on all issues associated with conducting and reporting on the work." GAO Government Auditing Standards Amendment No. 3, "Independence," January 2002, §3.12, pg 1.

GAO Government Auditing Standards Amendment No. 3 "Independence" January 2002, Organizational Impairment Considerations When Reporting Internally to Management, §3.30.8, pg 21.		"...a government internal audit organization can be presumed to be free from organizational impairments to independence when reporting internally to management if the head of the audit organization meets all of the following criteria: a. accountable to the head or deputy head of the government entity or to those charged with governance, b. reports the results of the audit organization's work to the head or deputy head of the government entity and to those charged with governance, c. located organizationally outside the staff or line of management function of the unit under audit, and d. has access to those charged with governance." GAO				"When evaluating whether independence impairments exist either in fact or appearance with respect to the entities for which audit organizations perform audit or attestation services, audit organizations consider three general classes or impairments to independence - personal, external, and organizational." IIA: Institute of Internal Auditors	"The audit committee's key responsibility - overseeing the process that produces reliable and credible financial statements while ensuring the company has effective internal controls - requires it to conduct activities that previously had been executed mostly by management. Today audit committees also are expected to retain and compensate the external auditors, grasp all of the key information included in a company's financial reporting, and oversee risk management and compliance with the laws and regulations affecting the company. This change is occurring in an environment that demands transparency." Audit Committee Effectiveness - What Works Best, 3rd Ed., 2005.	"The lines of authority for audit committees and management should in no way be murky. There should be a clear understanding and consensus regarding where management ends and the audit committee begins. To ensure this clarity, strong communications are essential both during and outside of committee meetings. Management should view the audit committee as an asset and seek its input prior to, rather than after making key decisions." The Audit Committee: Purpose, Process, Professionalism, pg 4.	"To achieve necessary independence, best practices suggest the CAE (chief audit executive) should report directly to the audit committee or its equivalent. For day to day administrative purposes, the CAE should report to the most senior executive (i.e., the chief executive officer (CEO)) of the organization." "Internal Audit Frequently Asked Questions" www.theiia.org	"Independence is essential to the effectiveness of internal auditing. This independence is obtained primarily through organizational status and objectivity: The organizational status of the internal auditing function and the support accorded to it by management are major determinants of its range and value. The head of the internal auditing function, therefore, should be responsible to an officer whose authority is sufficient to assure both a broad range of audit coverage and the adequate consideration of and effective action on the audit findings and recommendations. Objectivity is essential to the audit function. Therefore, an internal auditor should not develop and install procedures, prepare records, or engage in any other activity which he would normally review and appraise and which could reasonable be construed to compromise his independence." Statement of Responsibilities of the Internal Auditor , "Independence."	"Audit committees should own the relationship with external auditors - and if they do not and it is evident management still does, they need to take immediate steps to own it. Audit committees 'owning' the relationship have direct reporting by external auditors, ongoing communication, frequent meetings, and robust discussion about audit scope and audit results." Audit Committee Effectiveness - What Works Best, 3rd Ed., 2005.

IIA			"As the independent eyes and ears of the audit committee or equivalent, it is important that the internal audit activity is structurally independent, and free from coercion by management." "Internal Audit Frequently Asked Questions" www.theiia.org	"INDEPENDENCE: The audit charter should establish independence of the internal audit activity by the dual reporting relationship to management and the organization's most senior oversight group. Specifically, the CAE should report to executive management for assistance in establishing direction, support, and administrative interface; and typically to the audit committee for strategic direction, reinforcement, and accountability." AICPA: American Institute of Certified Public Accountants	"The creation of an effective audit committee function can help a government establish this accountability because it can focus specifically on issues related to fiscal accountability... For example, government audit committees can: Improve financial practices and reporting...; Enhance the internal audit function...; Enhance the external audit function..." The AICPA Audit Committee Toolkit: Government Organizations, "Benefits of a Government Audit Committee," 2005, p. 1.	"This tool uses the term governing body to describe those in government organizations that have the ultimate authority and responsibility for accountability of that government's public resources. At the federal, state, and local levels of government, the governing body may be a federal agency department head, legislative body, elected official's), governing board, supervisory board, council, or any designee established by law or charter."... "Each member of the audit committee should be appointed by the governing body" The AICPA Audit Committee Toolkit: Government Organizations, "Audit Committee Charter Matrix for Government Organizations," 2005, p. 1 & 2.	"The auditor should determine that the audit committee is informed about all significant accounting policies and how they are applied in the governmental organization. To make sure, the audit committee should expect that the auditors will communicate the following: 1. All significant accounting policies, including those that applied for the first time during the year; 2. How those accounting policies are applied in the organization; 3. Methods the organization used to account for significant unusual transactions; 4. The effect of significant accounting policies in controversial or emerging areas for which there is lack of authoritative guidance or consensus." The AICPA Audit Committee Toolkit: Government Organizations, "Discussions to Expect From Independent Auditors," 2005, p. 2.	"To be independent, the auditor must be intellectually honest; to be recognized as independent, he must be free from any obligation to or interest in the client, its management, or its owners." Professional Standards, Independence , November 1972, AU §220.03.	"The audit committee (or its equivalent) may have the responsibility to hire, fire, and evaluate the independent auditor. If the audit committee (or its equivalent) has this responsibility, the audit committee should answer a series of questions about its relationship with the independent auditor and should ask key executives in the government organization for their comments as well." The AICPA Audit Committee Toolkit: Government Organizations, "Evaluating the Independent Auditor: Questions to Consider," 2005, p. 1.

AICPA		"For an audit committee to fulfill its purpose, the members should be able to operate independently from management." An AICPA Requirement for Audit Committees: An Analysis of the Issue" p.11, 1978.	"It is in the best interest of all concerned for the audit committee and the internal audit team to maintain a strong positive relationship. The audit committee should view the internal audit team as their eyes and ears about what is going on within the government organization. The audit committee should promote a relationship of healthy professional skepticism between the chief audit executive and the chief financial officer (CFO) or the government organization's equivalent of a CFO, though it is these two individuals who will likely spend the most time working with the audit committee. The audit committee chair and the leader of the internal audit team... should have frequent contact between meetings of the audit committee. In fact, the CAE should have a "solid-line" reporting relationship to the audit committee (with a "dotted-line" reporting relationship to a senior executive in the government organization for administrative purposes),..." Likewise, the audit committee should be established in such a manner that all accountants thus engaged report directly to the audit committee" Recommended Practice: Audit Committees (1997, 2002, and 2006) (CAAFR).	"An audit committee is a practical means for a governing body to provide much needed independent review and oversight of the government's financial reporting processes, internal controls, and independent auditors. Specific tasks of the committee include a) determining the appropriate scope of the independent audit b) determining the appropriate scope of non audit services to be performed by the independent auditor c) managing the audit procurement process d) selecting the independent auditors e) reviewing the financial statements. F) reviewing the independent auditor's reports and following up on corrective action g) reviewing the comprehensive framework of internal control h) assessing the performance of the independent auditors and I) providing an independent forum for internal auditors to report finding of management abuse or control override." GFOA An Elected Officials Guide to Audit Committees: October 2006.		"There are two commonly held and opposing views on the optimal relationship between management and the internal audit function. One school of thought views the relationship between the governing body and the audit committee with internal auditors reporting directly to top management . That is, the internal audit function is seen as a practical way for managers to meet their internal control and financial reporting-related responsibilities just as the audit committee is a practical way for the governing body to meet its responsibilities in regard to internal control and financial reporting. The opposing position is that the internal audit function should be completely independent of management at all levels. Supporters of this latter position, which is becoming increasingly popular, argue that internal auditors should report directly to the audit committee, or to an elected auditor to ensure independence." Deloitte and Touche	"Today, typical audit committee responsibilities include: approving the overall audit scope; helping ensure that the audit is conducted in an efficient and costeffective (sic) manner; overseeing the organization's financial statements and internal controls; recommending to the governing body the approval of the organization's financial statements; recommending the appointment of the external auditor and the appropriate fee, directing special investigations for the governing body." Deloitte and Touche, Resource Guide: Public Sector Audit Committees, Section 2, Role of the Audit Committee, October 2005, p 3.	"General rules cannot be developed to determine whether individuals with governing authority are independent of management... Therefore, we recommend that the audit committee be made up of outside members appointed by the chief executive and confirmed by the governing body and/or independent governing body members themselves." Deloitte and Touche, Resource Guide: Public Sector Audit Committees, Section 2, Role of the Audit Committee , October 2005, p 4.	"Most audit committees regularly review the internal audit function as a part of their consideration of internal accounting control and operating efficiency... Many organizations have taken steps to ensure that the director of internal audit has access to the governing body through its audit committee on both a scheduled and as-needed basis and that management hierarchy does not hamper internal audit effectiveness. Ordinarily, much of this liaison is achieved by having the director of internal audit present at all regular audit committee meetings and by having a report on internal audit activities and scope presented at those meetings." Deloitte and Touche, Resource Guide: Public Sector Audit Committees, Section 8, Audit Committee Relationships, October 2005, p 25.		"Where an audit committee exists, it is the appropriate vehicle for auditor governing body communications. Audit committees may properly view the outside auditors as a fact-finding arm and as surrogates in making evaluations requiring accounting and auditing expertise." Deloitte and Touche, Resource Guide: Public Sector Audit Committees, Section 8, Audit Committee Relationships, October 2005, p 25.

Deloitte and Touche		“Public sector use of independent audit committees is not so straightforward. Often the structure of public sector entities and governments does not separate the governing authority and oversight responsibility from the day-to-day management of the entity. In a ‘strong mayor’ form of government, the mayor is the chief executive officer and is also a member of the governing body. In such cases, the mayor is not independent of management” Deloitte and Touche, Resource Guide: Public Sector Audit Committees, Section 2, Role of the Audit Committee, October 2005, p 4.

Kroll	(Off-set quote from GFOA) "'One important advantage of an audit committee is that it helps to facilitate communication between management, the auditors, and the governing board. An audit committee also limits the reliance governing bodies must place on the technical expertise of the independent auditor. An audit committee is useful, too, in helping to focus and document the government's process for managing the financial statement audit.'" p. 251	"Since 1997, the GFOA has recommended that '(e)very government should establish an audit committee or its equivalent.' " (Off-set quote from GFOA) "'The auditor of a state or local government's financial statements must be independent in both fact and in appearance. A properly constituted audit committee helps to enhance the financial statement auditor's real and perceived independence by providing a direct link between the auditor and governing board.'... In order to ensure objective oversight of the City's financial reporting process, the City should establish a three member audit committee, with two members from the public and one member of the City Council... The Mayor should appoint the two members of the Audit Committee from the public, and these appointments should be confirmed by the City Council." p. 251	"The Auditor General should report to an Audit Committee (defined below) no less than on a quarterly basis and periodically to the City Council... In order to protect against budget cuts that may unduly constrain the independent auditing process, the City's Audit Committee should approve the annual compensation of the Auditor General and the annual budget for the Auditor General's staff. The Auditor General should serve a term of 10 years, and could be removed from office for cause by the Audit Committee or upon an affirmative vote of three-quarters of the City Council." p. 250-251.	"Currently, the functions of accounting and financial reporting are combined with the function of internal auditing in the Office of the City Auditor and Comptroller; in substance, the auditor audits his own work. Such a structure lacks the requisite level of independence widely viewed as essential for a sound financial reporting system. To address the deficiencies that have been identified with respect to the independence and oversight of the internal and external financial reporting process, the Audit Committee is proposing the creation of an independent internal auditing function, and improved oversight of both the internal and external auditing process... The Auditor General should be nominated by the Mayor and appointed upon the consent of a majority of the City Council." p. 250.	"Consistent with the established practice for other entities gaining access to money from the investing public, the City's independent auditors should be retained by, report to, and take direction from, the Audit Committee. We would expect that the CFO and Auditor General, as supporting staff to the Audit Committee, would assist in this process. However, the final decision would be that of the Audit Committee." p. 252.
